This website is going to be the primary location where people can learn about my film and see the process of how they are made, as well as view the films. They will also be able to find my contact info on there.

The homepage will contain various links to parts of my website, Movies, Behind the Scenes, Downloads, About, and Contact Info. I would like my website to have a very clean look, similar to Apple's, or the RED Epics' websites. So it's both easy to navigate and easy on the eyes, as there won't be a whole lot to take in. I want the homepage to have those 5 links, as well as a slideshow, filling up the whole page, that goes right down below the main menu bar.

The information that is important to know for this website is that it is a film website dedicated to my independent film company, and that it is a place to explore the projects. To see how the films are created and possibly learn along with me, as I gain more and more knowledge on film, through both school and my projects. It also important that the users of the website know that I encourage criticism on my films, so that I know better on how I can improve my films and skills.

The Behind the scenes page I plan on having a list of the films I've made and then links to them, so people can view how they films were made, such as the process we went through, how long the project took all together, script writing, music, what equipment was used, the resources we had, how much money went into it, the locations, the applications used, and various things like that.

Under the Movies page, I want to have a list of movies, as well as a summary of what they're about, with links to all of them. If you follow those links you'll be able to follow to the movies, where you'll be able to view them, as well as read a bit about them. Below the films, there will be a link to the Behind the Scenes for that film, a link to the downloads page, and a return button to return you to the films menu.

On the download menu, there will be a similar layout as the previous two pages, there will be a list of the films, with links to download them, in the download page, you will have the option to click a link below the download for, behind the scenes, and to watch the film.

On the About page, I would like to have a layout of pictures spread around the page along with the text about me and the company and how the whole thing started. I would always like to have a timeline with when the films were made with links to the films that are mentioned.

On the Contact page, there will be a single option to email me. Under the email address will be a description of things you can contact me about, whether it be to questions about the company or how to do things.
